Chapter 1 by Nora

It felt like a normal day in the city, but the morning traffic always drove Leon crazy. Today was a school day, he hated school days, especially Wednesdays. Every Wednesday he got chemistry homework, he hated chemistry homework.

When Leon got to school a few teachers were talking nervously by the door. He went over and said "excuse me for asking but is there a problem?" the teachers looked at each other and shook their heads, so Leon walked through the door. He had caught some of the stuff the teachers were saying and he didn't like it.

He went over to his classroom and instantly saw his friend A.J, he waved hello and then he walked over and said "come over here where no one can hear us." They walked into a corner and Leon told him about what the teachers had said, "they said that there is something in the school that's like a black hole, when you step in it, it sucks you up. It has been taking students and parents and teachers are worried. They don't want to scare us so, they didn't tell us to keep us calm. "OMG!!!! that's crazy and scary but, I won't tell anyone."

A few minutes later, the teacher walked in, everybody in the class sat down and class began.
